DEALS FOR REHAB, SOMMERVILLE

Another day, another major record label move on the Atlanta music scene.

On Tuesday, ajc.com reported that rap duo Rehab has been resurrected as a quintet by original member Danny Boone and has a deal with Universal Republic.

Now there's news that much-buzzed-about local trumpeter Joey Sommerville has inked a deal with Three Keys Music — a label launched by BET founder Robert Johnson and pianist/businessman Marcus Johnson, and distributed by Koch.

“Joey is a great musician, and he understands the new music business model,” Marcus Johnson said in a news release. “His talent, tremendous work ethic and drive have allowed him to create a truly incredible album.”

Sommerville's latest CD, “Like You Mean It,” will be released next week, with guest appearances from Wayman Tisdale, Mike Phillips, Marion Meadows and Phil Perry.

On May 15, there will be a CD release party/performance at Sambuca Jazz Cafe, from which Sommerville's performances have been broadcast live each Thursday on Smooth Jazz 107.5.
